Members of Loksabha election or the lower house of India Parliament are elected by being voted upon by all adult citizen of india , from a set of candidates who stand in their respective constituencies

Be a citizen of India.Be a member of Lok Sabha or the Rajya Sabha.If the person choosen as Primeminister is neither a member of Lok Sabha nor the Rajya Sabha at the time of selection,they must become a memberof neither of the houseswithin six months

The Primeminister is appointed by the President of India , however the primeminister has to enjoy the confidence of the majority of Lok Sabha members,who are directly elected every five years , unless a Primeminister resigns.

Government officials may claim that india is growing faster now than it ever has , but few people believe that .

This time around ,Modi faces a more difficult task . Memories of the congress years have faded and his own performance as primeminister has been ,at best ,underwhelming

According to survey before election in 2019 , BJP secured first position and congress secured second position and other party secured third position
